The Walkable Community Workshop Series aimed to provide pedestrian and bike education and training for local officials, planners and stakeholders in walkability given by National Center for Bicycling and Walking (NCBW) experts. The NCBW provided 8 workshops in 8 different "study areas." The main goal was to bring together elected officials, public agency staff, public health practitioners, planners, engineers, advocates and local residents to focus everyone's efforts on making their communities more walkable. The program educated participants on the basics of how to create a walkable community in their own neighborhood and identify actions they can take to make it happen.
